Course Objectives:

This course surveys the law of family relations, including the law of marriage and annulment, divorce, legitimacy of children, custody and adoption. The course reviews the formation, maintenance, and dissolution of the family unit, including custody, support, and property rights involving spouses, partners and children. On completion of this course, the student will have a fundamental understanding of family law concepts.

Textbooks:

Required: FAMILY LAW CASES, MATERIALS & PROBLEMS (3rd Edition)
Swisher, Miller and Shapo, LexisNexis

Recommended: UNDERSTANDING FAMILY LAW (3rd Edition) Gregory, Swisher
and Wolff, LexisNexis

PARTICIPATION, WRITING ASSIGNMENTS AND GRADING:

On completion of the course, the student will receive a numeric grade. Students will receive a "participation" grade, which will comprise 20% of the course grade; an "activities" grade, which will comprise not more than 30% of the course grade; and, a "final examination" grade, which will comprise not less than 50% of the course grade.

Participation: Students are expected to be prepared for each class meeting, to timely attend classes and other course activities (if any), to engage in appropriate class dialogue and discussion, and to prepare and timely present assigned discussion topics. Reading assignments must be completed prior to each class meeting. Students should be prepared to engage in meaningful discussion of legal concepts introduced in the reading assignments, class lectures and class discussions. From time to time, individual students will be assigned brief discussion topics for presentation at a class meeting. Students must timely perform necessary research on the discussion topic and be prepared to present the topic during class and to engage in discussion concerning the assigned topic. Tardiness, absences and lack of preparedness will adversely affect the student's participation grade.

Activities: From time to time during the semester, short writing assignments and/or quizzes may be assigned/administered. Each assignment/quiz will be individually scored, and the cumulative total of all scores will comprise the student's "activities" grade. Short writing assignments may consist of the preparation of Judicial Council forms, motions, agreements, briefs, and/or other writings relevant to the practice of family law. In writing assignments, students are expected to demonstrate an understanding of legal concepts introduced in the reading materials, class discussions and class lectures. Specific instructions and additional scoring/grading information will be provided when the writing assignments/quizzes are assigned/administered.

Examinations: At the conclusion of the semester, a comprehensive final examination will be administered during the final exams period. The final examination will consist of multiple choice questions and one or more essay questions. For purposes of the final examination, students will be expected to demonstrate an understanding of family law issues and legal principles by identifying issues, stating clearly and concisely relevant law, and applying relevant law to the facts presented through logical discussion and analysis of issues.

ATTENDANCE

Students are subject to attendance and participation policies and procedures specified in the Student Handbook. Attendance is mandatory. Absence from three (3) class meetings will expose the student to academic discipline, and without further notice, may result in removal from the course. Students removed from the course for excessive absence will receive a course grade of "F" or "W" as determined by applicable academic policies and procedures. Excessive tardiness or unpreparedness will be deemed an absence. In addition to the foregoing, tardiness and absences will adversely affect the student's participation grade.

Throughout the semester, assignments, notices, announcements and other communications will regularly be made via e-mail and/or through the online web course. As part of the attendance requirement, students are expected to regularly visit the online web course and check email daily to stay apprised of class-related announcement and communication.

READING ASSIGNMENTS:

Except as otherwise noted, (1) all references are to the required casebook and (2) exclude "Problems" from readings. Topic dates noted may "shift" to accommodate discussions and other relevant course activities, but topics will be presented and discussed in the sequence set forth below.
