Class Syllabus

Course Overview

To provide the student with a basic survey of the vast and varied practice areas encompassed in the general classification “employment law.” The course will explore the fundamental bases that form the employment relationship, the rights and duties of both employees and employers, and the common statutory and case law systems related to the employee-employer relationship.

Learning Objectives

Objective One: The student should understand the various disciplines within this large field which should better enable them to make certain externship, clerking and preliminary career choices.

Objective Two: The student should understand his or her basic legal rights and duties as both employer and employee after law school.

Objective Three: Through classroom participation, the student should further develop oral advocacy basic competence.

Objective Four: The student should learn some practical approaches to advising both employer and employee clients on common employment-related topics.

Required Materials

The required text is to be brought to all classes. The student is expected to have read the material assigned for each week and to be ready to engage in a knowledgeable, in-depth, spirited discussion of the issues raised in the assignment.

Additional material, including handouts or library research, may be assigned during the semester at the professor’s discretion.

I intend to be fully prepared for each class and I expect nothing less from the student.
Examination and Grading

Your grade will be based on a mid-term and a final examination.

The mid-term examination will be a multiple choice test. It will occur in week eight of the semester, and will cover the materials discussed in the first 7 weeks of class. The mid-term grade will represent one-third of your overall grade in the class.

The final examination will be 50% multiple choice and 50% short answer examination together worth two-thirds of the class grade. The final examination may cover any material covered during the course.

Applicable grading policies and procedures of the university will be implemented in producing the final grades.

Classroom Participation

Although you are not going to be graded on classroom participation, I expect regular attendance and full participation of all class members in each class.

More important than a grade is your reputation, which you are formulating as a law student. I expect none of my students will want to create a reputation of laziness or unpreparedness with their classmates or their professor. That reputation will stay with you far longer than a single class grade.

Office Hours

As an adjunct and a full-time practicing lawyer, I will not maintain regular office hours at the school. That said, I promise to make myself reasonably available to any student who wishes to meet with me or talk with me.

I can make myself available at the school in the evening before or after class, and I am also willing to allow students to come to my office for appointments to discuss the class. I would also encourage phone conversations.

To schedule an appointment for a meeting or telephone call, please send me an email at npedersen@pedersenlaw.com. While I will remain flexible, it would be best if you try to schedule an appointment at least two days prior to the meeting or phone conference you are requesting.
