Course Overview
Information is a crucial asset in society today. Every person, government department, or legal entity produces information of some kind. Whether for ensuring access to justice, guarding against the misuse of information, combating crime and terrorism or for meeting customer needs, both the public and private sector recognize its value. At the same time, there is widespread acceptance that the use of information needs to be governed by a robust legal framework. This course introduces and surveys the legal framework pertaining to information law, as it applies to various sectors of society. Topics include different types of information and classification (government, health, financial, and personal), public access to information, information privacy, the ethical use of information, information sharing, information algorithms, data mining, litigation and legal practice issues.

Learning Goals
(1) To understand the doctrinal approaches taken to “information” in various areas of law such as administrative law, contracts, criminal procedure, employment, trade secrets, and privacy.
(2) To understand the interplay among public policy and technological advances with respect to information access and legal doctrine.
(3) To develop a non-technical, conceptual understanding of the technologies underlying big data, machine learning, and artificial intelligence in order to understand the effects of these changes on litigation, discovery, and our judicial system.

(4) To advocate, in both oral and written formats, the legal, economic, and social policy strengths and weaknesses of a rule, or proposed rule, and to use case law, statutes, and policy to persuade others.
(5) To utilize written analytical and advocacy skills, in conjunction with advanced legal research sources, in a legal research paper of publishable quality.

Attendance and Grading
Class attendance is important, and it is mandatory. Per the Western State Attendance Policy (as found in the current Student Handbook), a student who misses more than four (4) class sessions may be dismissed from the class and thus receive a “0” for the course.

This class is designed to satisfy the Western State College of Law upper level writing requirement (ULWR), which is based on the guidelines established by the American Bar Association. Your final grade will be based on a full first draft of the final paper (10%), class participation (20%) and a final paper, 17-20 pages in length of publishable quality (70%).

You will work on the research paper throughout the semester. In a Western State UWLR course, you must earn a 2.0 or higher on the research paper to obtain ULWR credit.

Class Participation
Students are expected to be present and ready to participate at each class. The class is more productive, fun, and fast-paced if you have thought about the material and are willing to discuss it. I will be providing a few guest speakers throughout the course which will allow you to actively engage with practitioners in the field. We are fortunate to have a relatively small number of students which will allow this seminar to incorporate a great deal of participation and flexibility in attaining our objectives.

Class participation grade is based on a brown bag presentation, quality and quantity of contributions to class discussion, quality of work on several in-class assignments, and overall professionalism. It is estimated that, on average, the assigned reading, other classroom preparation, and research/writing assignments, should require six or more hours outside of class.

Western State College of Law
Programmatic Learning Outcomes
Western State College of Law’s curriculum is designed so that every student achieves a level of competency prior to graduation in each of the eight Programmatic Learning Outcomes listed below:
(1) Doctrinal Knowledge
Students will demonstrate knowledge of substantive and procedural law in the core curriculum subjects, including Contracts, Criminal Law, Criminal Procedure, Torts, Real Property, Business Association, Evidence, Civil Procedures, Constitutional Law, Estates, Community Property, Remedies, and Professional Responsibility.
(2) Practice Skills
Students will demonstrate the development of other law practice skills. Each student’s chosen outcomes within this category will be varied based on the student’s particular interests, coursework and work experiences. They may include, but are not limited to, the following topics: oral presentation and advocacy; interviewing; counseling; client service and business development; negotiations, mediation, arbitration, or other alternate dispute resolution methods; advanced legal research and writing (excluding purely academic papers and the first four units earned in introductory first-year legal research and writing class); applied legal writing such as drafting contracts, pleadings, other legal instruments; law practice management or the use of technology in law practice; cultural competency; collaboration or project management; financial analysis, such as accounting, budgeting project management, and valuation; cost benefit analysis in administrative agencies; use of technology, data analyses, or predictive coding; business strategy and behavior; pre-trial preparation, fact investigation, such as discovery, e-discovery, motion practice, assessing evidence, or utilizing experts; trial practice; professional civility and applied ethics; a law clinic that includes a classroom component; or a legal externship that includes a classroom component.

(3) Legal Analysis
Students will demonstrate the ability to identify the factual and legal issues implicated by a fact pattern and to appropriately use cases (including identifying the salient features of an appropriate precedent case, identifying legally significant similarities or differences between the precedent case and a fact pattern and explaining why those are legally significant) and rules (including the ability to connect legally significant facts in a fact pattern to the rule) to predict how a court would decide the issue. Students will also demonstrate the ability to identify and evaluate the public policies of a precedent case or rule, and be able to evaluate how public policy can impact the application of a rule to the legal issue.

(4) Legal Research
Students will demonstrate the ability to locate relevant legal authority using a variety of book and electronic resources, and to properly cite to such legal authority.

(5) Communication
Students will demonstrate the ability to communicate both orally and in writing in a manner appropriate to a particular task to effectively convey the author or speaker’s ideas. This includes audience sensitivity in written and oral communication (the ability to adopt a tone, style and level of detail appropriate to the needs, knowledge and expertise of the audience); and written communication basic proficiency (the ability to use the conventions of grammar, spelling, punctuation, diction and usage appropriate to the task and sufficient to convey effectively the author’s ideas).

(6) Advocacy of Legal Argument
Students will demonstrate the ability, in both oral and written formats, to evaluate the legal, economic and social strengths and weaknesses of a case and use case and statutory authority as well as public policy to persuade others. Making policy-based arguments includes the ability to identify and evaluate the public policies of a precedent case or rule and their implications, and be able to assert such appropriate arguments to support a particular application or distinction of a precedent case to a legal controversy or a particular resolution of the application of a rule to the legal controversy.
(7) Client Sensitivity and Cultural Competency
Students will demonstrate an awareness of clients’ needs and goals, including a sensitivity to clients’ background and circumstances (including, but not limited to, socio-economic, gender, race, ethnicity, educational, disability and/or religious background(s)), the ability to make decisions that reflect an appropriate focus on those needs and goals, and awareness that cultural issues may affect the relevance of facts and application of the law.

(8) Legal Ethics
Students will demonstrate the ability to identify ethical issues in law practice contexts and make appropriate decisions to resolve such issues.

DISABILITY SERVICES STATEMENT
Western State College of Law provides accommodations to qualified students with disabilities. The Disabilities Services Office assists qualified students with disabilities in acquiring reasonable and appropriate accommodations and in supporting equal access to services, programs, and activities at Western State College of Law.

To seek reasonable accommodations, a student must contact Senior Assistant Dean Donna Espinoza, Student Services Director and Disabilities Services Coordinator, whose office is in the Students Services Suite 119. Dean Espinoza’s phone number and email address are: (714) 459-1117; despinoza@wsulaw.edu. When seeking accommodations, a student should notify Dean Espinoza of her or his specific limitations and, if known, her or his specific requested accommodations. Students who seek accommodations will be asked to supply medical documentation of the need for accommodation. Classroom accommodations are not retroactive, but are effective only upon the student sharing approved accommodations with the instructor or professor. Therefore, students are encouraged to request accommodations as early as feasible with Dean Espinoza to allow for time to gather necessary documentation. If you have a concern or complaint in this regard, please notify Dean Espinoza; or please notify Dean Allen Easley at aeasley@wsulaw.edu or (714) 459-1168. Complaints will be handled in accordance with the College of Law’s “Policy against Discrimination and Harassment.”
